FLIRTIN' WITH DISASTER

Bear confrontation turns tragic

By Sheet Staff

A dog-bear confrontation turned into a dogs-humans-bear confrontation in Old Mammoth on Monday morning.

The 17-month old, 70-pound yearling cub did not live to tell the tale.

The incident took place at the home of Danica McCoy and Damon Conover just after 6 a.m.

According to Police Chief Dan Casabian, McCoy heard a scuffle outside, and saw her dog and the cub scrapping.

When she went out to attempt to break it up, another dog followed.

Then the bear turned his attention to her.

Conover was in the shower at the time. When he got out, he heard the melee and ran out buck naked to rescue McCoy.

Hope she remembers that on Valentine's Day!*

At some point in what is now a family brawl, Conover managed to run back inside and grab a hatchet. He ultimately subdued the cub with the blunt end.

"I didn't see details... I didn't see the people interact with the bear at all," a neighbor recounted. "All I really saw was that the bear was kind of chasing the dogs, and then the people were yelling, and then, at some point, I saw the man, like, lying on the ground,"

Leaving the bear staggered in the driveway, McCoy and Conover subsequently drove themselves to Mammoth Hospital where they were treated for their injuries.

Both required surgery.

When California Dept. of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) arrived at the scene, the cub was tranquilized and then transported to Rancho Cordova for further study.

"Two hours later, there were all these trucks and fish and wildlife. So I went over to just see if everyone was okay. They were pretty much just like, we can't say anything. [A CDFW official said] 'Oh, we're dealing with an injured bear,'" the neighbor remembered. "I was like, 'Oh, that looks like a dead bear, but okay.'"

Ironically, it wasn't the only bear call of the day - later, there was a report of a bear in an unoccupied home on Convict Drive.

While every bear incident revives calls to "Bring Back [former wildlife specialist] Steve Searles," the Town appears to have ruled that out, opting instead to boost public outreach efforts via its Office of Outdoor Recreation.

Per Outdoor Recreation Manager Lawson Reif, this includes the hiring of host staff (Last year it was the 2 recreation technicians we hired for the USFS) which proactively interacts with visitors to attempt to educate them on bears in Lakes Basin Campgrounds.

"This work will begin this weekend as we just onboarded and trained the majority of our host team," said Reif.

This is part of a laundry list of outreach efforts.

The Town is also partnering with Mammoth Disposal to monitor overfull dumpsters. Apparently, Mammoth Disposal trucks now all possess cameras which take photos and send alerts. Town Code Compliance then is dispatched to write citations.

Mammoth PEDC approves Woodsite abomination

By Lunch

As I sat in Suite Z watching the madness unfold on Wednesday morning, I couldn't help but think of the late Skip Harvey, Nancy Walter, John Walter, Evanne Jardine, John Cunningham ... and the Keebler Elves.

Because during the Town's General Plan update of two decades ago, the Advocates for Mammoth hit upon a terse phrase which described what they envisioned for Mammoth's future - a Village in the Trees. The idea being that the built environment would not subsume the natural one.

But since that time, Mammoth's Planning Commission has been renamed the Planning and Economic Development Commission, whose longtime chair (Michael Vanderhurst) has been an unabashed tourism (he works for Mammoth Lakes Tourism) and development booster.

And successive Town Councils have stripped away any pretense of the Town caring about the natural environment.

DIGGING IN THEIR HOOVES

By Fisher

Wild horse organizations from across the West are rearing up to protect local herds, but for the Inyo National Forest, the issue is less a passion project than a matter of administrative duty.

On Monday, the Inyo National Forest held a virtual public hearing on a proposal to use helicopters and other motorized vehicles to round up wild horses outside the Montgomery Pass Wild Horse Territory on the California-Nevada border, where federal agencies are planning a large-scale gather that could begin as early as this summer.

The proposed operation, in collaboration with the Bureau of Land Management, would remove an estimated 300 to 500 horses from outside the territory boundary, according to the project's Environmental Assessment, which was completed in 2024 and resulted in a Finding of No Significant Impact in 2025.

If executed as slated, the project would be the most significant removal of horses in the area's history. So, wild horse groups have been digging their hooves in on this issue for quite a while.

Among them, Rebecca Falk, an official of Advocates for Wild Equines, said during the meeting, "The American people are tired of seeing taxpayer money go to cruel helicopter roundups," and argued that "the best possible thing to do to control horse numbers is use fertility control and bait and trap."

Multiple speakers opposed conducting a gather during foaling season, warning that foals could be separated from their mothers or injured during the roundup. They also worried about the welfare of pregnant mares and senior horses.

"Foals are routinely separated from mares and established family structures are permanently disrupted," Liz Holland of Friends of Animals said.

Many also maintained that the horses are native to the area, a claim disputed by the Inyo National Forest. On its website, the agency states that "the origin of the Montgomery Pass Herd is unknown, but it is speculated that the herd originated in connection to mustang drives between the Owens Valley and Nevada."

Tribal representatives had their own objections, arguing that the horses are part of their history and that the helicopter gathers could damage cultural sites.

"The horses are not just a number," Rhonda Kauk, a member of the Mono Lake Kutzadika'a tribe, said. "They are an extension of our culture and who we are today."

Ahead of the public comments, Joseph

Swisher, a Forest Service rangeland manager said the gather is required to reduce impacts to public safety and natural resources, stating that horses outside the territory are "causing harm to natural resources," contributing to "decreased nuisance animals on private lands," and creating "safety concerns for the public and the horses along major highways."

Swisher cited a 2024 aerial survey that estimated between 694 and 699 horses in and around the territory, well above the management target of 138 to 230 animals.

He also said helicopters are "humane and often more effective and efficient than other types of gather methods," explaining that aircraft operate using "pressure and release methods" to safely guide horses toward capture facilities.

Public commenters overwhelmingly disagreed with that characterization, and many argued that the Forest Service was not adequately considering public input.

"We have little proof that you are giving our comments the serious consideration and weight that they deserve," advocacy group Wild Horse Education representative, Marie Milliman, said. She called for a formal written response to public input, as is traditionally done in NEPA or CEQA reviews.

Deniz Bolbol of the Cloud Foundation, a wild horse advocacy group, urged the Forest Service to install cameras on helicopters, trap sites and holding pens used during gathers.

"The cameras are the only way to ensure transparency for the public and accountability for the agency," she said.

Several speakers reported difficulty accessing the webinar and requested an additional opportunity to provide comment. Agency officials did not respond to this request, and encouraged people to provide written comments if they could not log on to the webinar.

The gather is authorized under the Wild Free-Roaming Horses and Burros Act of 1971 and the Federal Land Policy and Management Act, according to the Environmental Assessment.

In that document, the agency said captured horses would be transported to off-range corrals, evaluated by veterinarians, and made available for adoption or sale.

As the public comment period concluded, agency staff reiterated that comments will be recorded and reviewed, though none of the officials on the call acknowledged any of the statements made.

EASTSIDE ON THE SCHNEID?

By Lunch

On Tuesday night, the Eastside Student Center (ESC) made one more pitch to the Bishop Unified School District Board to maintain its after-school program for 5th and 6th graders.

Eastside’s budget for 2025-2026 was $392,000.

Eastside’s Executive Director Tyler McManus presented a proposal to offer a streamlined program next year for approximately $222,000.

She asked the BUSD Board for $194,000 in support while promising that ESC would fundraise the remaining $28,000.

The pared-down program would operate for fewer hours, offer fewer external activities, and have a staff/student ratio of 1:10.

This past year, that ratio was 1:7.

Overall, ESC’s staff budget would dwindle from $255,000 to approximately $126,000.

This past year, ESC served 40 students daily among 5th and 6th graders, with a total enrollment of 121 (obviously, different kids attend different days).

$392,000 divided by 121 = $3,239 per student.

Brittany Rossi, who runs the District’s Ram’s Club for TK-4th graders, then made her pitch for Ram’s Club to absorb 5th and 6th grade from ESC.

She said Ram’s Club can do 5th/6th in-house for between $120,000-$160,000, although she lists the line item as $194,000 in her draft budget.

She even got a little snarky in her presentation (see accompanying chart), using an AI analysis to suggest ESC ran a lesser program.

The Ram’s Club budget for TK-4 is approximately $1.16 million, and Ram’s Club counted 252 enrollees this past year.

That equates to $4,588 per student.

The biggest difference between ESC and Ram’s for 5th and 6th grade is that ESC would be off-campus and Ram’s on-campus.

And for a 5th/6th grader, that’s important.

As Ann Strohm said during public comment, “Physical safety is one thing, enrichment is another.” She urged the Board to keep the 5th/6th grade program off-campus.

Cam Smith agreed. “Being on campus reeks of detention.”

Jessica Ortiz also supported a “safe, inclusive space away from school ... Eastside Student Center is amazing.”

But for a District which presented a budget in slight deficit on Tuesday, its Board members seem more inclined to check whatever represents the less-expensive box.

Board President Claudia Moya Tanner expressed concern that ESC wouldn’t be able to fundraise the promised $28,000, presenting financial risk.

On Wednesday, Eastside Student Center announced that an anonymous donor had promised $25,000 of the $28,000.

On Thursday, the BUSD Board approved its 2026-2027 budget.

It allocated $194,000 to the after school program for 5th and 6th graders.

Alas, the Board did not select a provider, so the ESC program for 5th and 6th grade remains in limbo.

Stay tuned.

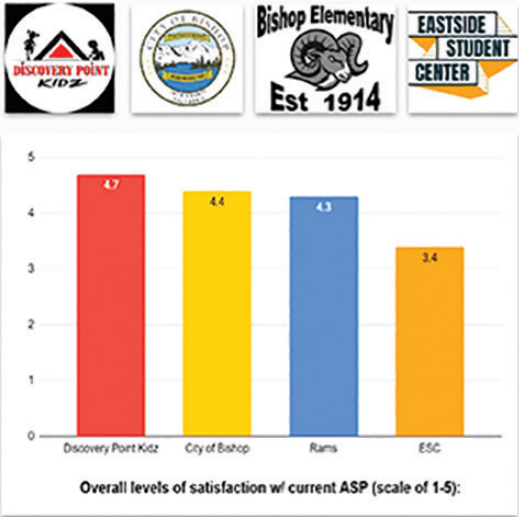

AFTER SCHOOL PROGRAM NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Overall levels of satisfaction w/ current ASP (scale of 1-5):

- Discovery Point Kidz: 4.7
- City of Bishop: 4.4
- Rams: 4.3
- Eastside Student Center: 3.4

Feedback summaries for Rams & ESC: (AI generated)

- Rams: Parents generally saw Rams Club as a safe, dependable, well-liked program, with improvements needed mostly around enrichment, engagement for older students, & behavior management—not fundamental program quality.
- ESC: The dominant narrative was that Eastside needs: 1) More supervision, 2) More structure, 3) Better management of peer interactions and bullying, 4) Stronger academic support, 5) Better separation of age groups.

HANTAVIRUS UPDATE

THE RECENT NEWS VS. LOCAL RISK

Eastern Sierra Hantavirus is NOT the same as the recent cruise ship outbreak. It does NOT spread person to person — and Mono County has been case-free for over a year. Let’s keep it that way.

How It Spreads: Hantavirus Pulmonary Syndrome (HPS) is a serious illness carried by local deer mice. The virus spreads through droppings, urine, and saliva, becoming airborne when disturbed. This is almost always an indoor issue; outdoor risk is very low.

Prevent & Clean Safely

Seal cracks and holes in homes and outbuildings to keep rodents out.

Keep your eyes open in and around your home and workplace for signs of mice droppings and nests.

If there are signs of mice, open doors and windows for at least 30 minutes before cleaning.

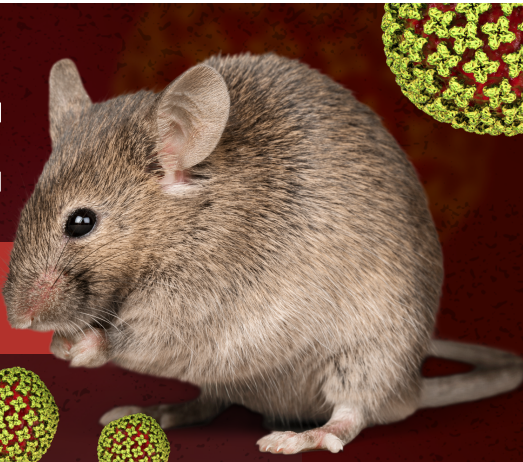

Do not sweep or vacuum rodent droppings. Instead, spray with bleach or other disinfectant that kills viruses, and wipe clean.

Wear gloves and an N95 or better mask when cleaning rodent-infested areas.

Mono Public Health offers free N95 masks.

HOUSING GOES PUBLIC

By Fisher

As Mono County weighs whether to build housing on a small parcel overlooking Lee Vining's sewage ponds, supervisors unanimously approved a policy change that could make such projects easier to approve.

On Tuesday, the Mono County Board of Supervisors approved a resolution declaring housing development a permitted use on county-owned land designated for Public and Quasi-Public Facilities (PF).

The proposal comes as the county explores development of a roughly one-acre parcel adjacent to the Lee Vining Community Center, which is the only county-owned vacant parcel in town and the subject of recent community discussions about affordable and workforce housing.

Under the county's General Plan, PF-designated land allows certain uses outright, "including other uses permitted by the public landowner." County counsel argued that housing development should fall within that category.

"It streamlines the process, and we know housing is a big priority for Mono County," said Deputy County Counsel Jeff Hughes. "And because it's going to be developed internally, working with community development, we will basically be going through that permitting process anyways."

If adopted, the resolution would eliminate the need for future housing projects on PF-designated county land to obtain a Use Permit, removing one layer of discretionary review. Other requirements, including environmental review under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), would still apply.

For background, in February, Lee Vining residents gathered at the Mono Basin Regional Planning Advisory Committee meeting to discuss what might be built on the county-owned parcel adjacent to the community center.

Development consultant Shellen Rodriguez of SMR Development presented a yield study showing the site could accommodate up to 14 units under existing standards, or as many as 25 units with density bonuses.

Potential concepts ranged from manufactured homes to townhomes, though no decisions have been made yet regarding housing type, ownership structure, amenities, or project design.

Residents raised questions about everything from childcare needs and parking to views and odors from the nearby sewage ponds, but largely supported the idea of a housing development on the parcel.

County officials ultimately agreed to survey residents and return with a more detailed proposal.

The latest resolution does not approve any specific housing project. Instead, it establishes housing as an allowed use on county-owned PF land, potentially smoothing the path for future developments such as the Lee Vining proposal.

WHAT NOW?

By Fisher

Despite rising local property tax revenues and boosts from development, Mammoth Unified School District officials warned that staffing reductions could be necessary if voters do not approve a new parcel tax measure on the November ballot.

At a recent budget workshop, district Chief Business Officer Casey O'Neill said approximately 86% of district revenue is generated locally through property taxes, parcel taxes, donations, and other community-based sources. He said property tax revenues have recently increased by about 6% to 8% annually, driven by continued growth in assessed property values and development.

O'Neill emphasized that while revenues are increasing, they remain insufficiently stable to support ongoing staffing levels without additional voter-approved funding. He noted that staffing makes up roughly 83% of the district's total expenditures, making personnel costs the largest driver of the budget.

The warning comes after voters rejected Measure N in June, a proposed $99 fee per parcel annually intended to replace Measure G, which is expiring soon and has provided $59 per parcel annually for district operations.

O'Neill said that without a successful parcel tax measure in November, the district would likely need to "restructure" staffing, i.e. position reductions or layoffs.

The district's funding structure is unusual compared to most California school districts, relying heavily on local revenue rather than state aid. Roughly 76% of annual funding comes from local property taxes alone, supplemented by parcel taxes and revenue tied to development and community partnerships.

He said state funding increases provide limited benefit because the district already exceeds the state's minimum funding guarantee, meaning many new state mandates increase costs without corresponding revenue gains.

Recent development, including projects such as the Limelight Hotel, has contributed to rising property tax revenues. O'Neill said unsecured property tax revenue tied to business assets has also grown by roughly 30% to 35% annually in recent years.

"We have benefited, fiscally speaking, by the Limelight going in," O'Neill said.

Additional hotel projects currently under construction or in planning stages are expected to generate similar revenue streams, he said.

Despite that growth, the district remains highly dependent on the local real estate market and tourism-driven economy, which can fluctuate year to year. Trustees are expected to continue discussions on a possible November parcel tax measure in the coming months.

MLR wants an assistant!

Last Wednesday, the Mammoth Lakes Town Council deliberated on the contract renewal between the Town of Mammoth Lakes (TOML) and Mammoth Lakes Recreation (MLR), though no vote was cast. MLR currently receives $108,000 from the town under the current contract, set to expire on June 30. The organization requested an additional $35,000 to fund an assistant to program director Kim Anaclerio.

MLR is a non-governmental organization (NGO) and Anaclerio is the only employee. An additional team member would alleviate Anaclerio's workload.

Anaclerio's assistant would focus on the MLR's stewardship programs throughout the Eastern Sierra. These include Trashy Thursday's, a monthly volunteer effort from June to September to clear trash from Mammoth Lakes; Wednesday Worknights, four evenings centered on volunteer trail construction and maintenance; and Clear the Line, a monthly stewardship event to help clear lakes and waterways of discarded fishing line.

A memorandum of understanding (MOU) was recently reached between MLR and the United States Forest Service to allow the NGO to work directly with the Inyo National Forest to support stewardship, volunteer engagement, and visitor education activities. The MOU was signed last month and will be effective until 2031.

On Tuesday, MLR also secured a $150,000 grant from the Sierra Nevada Conservancy (SNC) to purchase three CD3 trailers, a waterless, user-operated cleaning system. Those systems will be placed at Convict Lake and the Lakes Basin to prevent the spread of the invasive golden mussel species in the Eastern Sierra.

The town council will vote on the contract and whether to approve the staff position on June 17.

Kidnapping suspect caught in Bishop

This week, Bishop Police apprehended a man allegedly kidnapping family members.

On Wednesday morning, at approximately 5:44 a.m., the Bishop Police Department received a domestic violence report involving a male, a female, and three children behind the city park. Jeremy Ripley, a 42-year-old resident of Bishop, was identified as a suspect.

Bishop police officers responded immediately. They contacted witnesses who were in the area at the time of the incident. Through the officer's investigation, they learned the suspect and victims had left the scene in a black Volkswagen Golf. A Be-On-The-Lookout (BOLO) was promptly issued to surrounding law enforcement agencies.

Officers subsequently reviewed footage captured by a Flock Safety camera located within the city park.

Shortly thereafter, allied agencies located the suspect vehicle traveling southbound on U.S. Highway 395 near the Klondike Curve.

An enforcement stop was conducted, and Ripley was safely detained. He was arrested on suspicion of four felony charges: kidnapping, false imprisonment with violence, criminal threats with intent to terrorize, and stalking; and two misdemeanors: aggravated battery of spouse/ex-spouse/date/etc. and child abuse with possible great bodily injury or death.

A breath of fresh air

A new state and local air quality initiative launched this spring with the distribution of 33 free portable air cleaners to residents seeking protection from wildfire smoke and dust.

The project is led by the Eastern Sierra Air, Information and Resilience (ES-AIR) Partnership, a collaboration that includes local tribes, the California Department of Public Health, the Great Basin Unified Air Pollution Control District and health departments in Alpine, Inyo and Mono counties.

"The Air District is excited to support efforts to improve community preparedness and help people protect their health from the harmful impacts of air pollution," said Kim Mitchell of the Great Basin Unified Air Pollution Control District.

Project organizers are encouraging residents to sign up for the Air District's smoke and dust health advisories, which provide notifications during poor air quality events.

"Members of the Big Pine Paiute Tribe of the Owens Valley say that smoke and dust affect families' health more as our valley faces hotter, drier conditions that cause more frequent wildfires and more fugitive dust," said Tribal Air Program Coordinator Cindy Duriscoe.

Organizers say staying indoors with windows and doors closed, reducing outdoor activity and filtering indoor air are among the best ways to reduce exposure to harmful particles during smoke and dust events.

Lions Club 4th of July Breakfast

INSIDE THE BUBBLE

By Libre
Devil Take the Hindmost
Edward Chancellor
MacMillan
448 p.

“The four most expensive words in the English language are ‘this time it’s different,’” Edward Chancellor attributes to Sir John Templeton in his expansive and engrossing Devil Take the Hindmost: A History of Financial Speculation.

This book fundamentally changed the way I see the world.

Devil Take the Hindmost is densely detailed, beginning with the Roman financial system and ending in 1999, when the text was published. Chancellor defines speculation as “to reflect or theorize without a firm factual basis.” A financial speculator, he continues, “resembles the alchemist in that he is constantly constructing abstruse theories to turn paper into gold, normally with little success.”

In other words, a financial bubble. Chancellor spends the next 349 pages addressing how speculation—alchemy, financial bubbles, call it what you want—is created and the panic generated when it falls apart.

My favorite excerpt of his centered on “Tulipomania,” in which, during the 1630s, the Dutch economy became hyperfixated on the tulip. The flowers proved the perfect object for speculation. Tulips were easy to cultivate and required little land. The craze reached across classes: the wealthy began to collect rare bulbs, and the poor, who couldn’t afford to purchase land, could instead wager on a bulb. As interest in the tulips grew, so did the volume of the flowers grown and the arrangements traded.

But as the market exploded, extending into Paris and northern France, the wealthy bulb collectors lost interest, withdrawing their large financial contributions from the market.

“Tulips remained merely an expression of wealth, not a means to that end,” Chancellor writes.

Hence, the tulip market lost its stability.

On February 3, 1637, the market suddenly crashed. Chancellor attributes the tulip crumble to the rapid approach of spring. Rumors spread that there were no more buyers, and the next day, tulips could not be sold at any price.

As the book unfolds, Chancellor continues to ravenously walk through anecdote after anecdote of financial alchemy and collapse. What stuck out to me was that he wrote this text before the 2008 recession. While I was initially skeptical of the legitimacy of Chancellor’s text due to its age, I rapidly realized his careful reporting perfectly illuminated the ways in which the 2000s financial crisis occurred. The housing bubble was bound to burst.

After I put the book down, I thought of the speculation I notice in my daily life. Data centers, for one. In my home state of Utah, business shark Kevin O’Leary had a 40,000-acre data center approved on drought-stricken land. The project has since been scaled back to 10,000 acres after significant public backlash. I am horrified.

The environmental impacts of data centers are disturbing, but after reading Chancellor’s book, I couldn’t stop thinking about the future of AI. Why build these resource suckers if there’s no telling what will become of the technology they produce? Greed, financial optimism, and speculation. I can’t say when the bubble will burst, but my fingers are crossed.

Another bubble also came to mind: tourism in the Eastern Sierra. Mammoth Lakes Tourism (MLT) and the Town of Mammoth Lakes (TOML) speculate relentlessly on the volume of tourists and the money these individuals will spend.

The Eastern Sierra is a tourism-based economy, and without this “alchemy,” the area would have no ability to build infrastructure or implement Transit Occupancy Tax (TOT)-driven amenities. Without a little guesswork, building the $16.82 million Dave and Roma McCoy Arts and Cultural Center (MACC) would not be possible. Say goodbye to the indoor ice rink, the rec center, and Margarita Fest.

Tourism, like all speculation, is volatile.

There’s no telling if, or when, tourists will stop swarming to the Eastside. Climate change certainly won’t help. Would another winter like the one we had this year be enough to push the town over the edge? I am no financial expert, but using my Chancellor-informed brain, I’ll say increasing TOT certainly won’t make the town’s tourism speculation more stable. This time, it won’t be different.

Chancellor’s Devil Take the Hindmost isn’t an easy read. Each page is dense, a bombardment of information. But these details are worth it. Whether you’re looking to expand your mind and look critically at financial bubbles through a historical lens, or if you’re like me and had no understanding of speculation before, this book is for you.

Notice of Petition to Administer Estate

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF GILBERT ALLEN KNIGHT MONO COUNTY SUPERIOR COURT CASE NO.: 26PRM17

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of GILBERT ALLEN KNIGHT. A Petition for Probate has been filed by WENDY SHRADER in the Superior Court of California, County of Mono. The Petition for Probate requests that WENDY SHRADER be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the executor to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: July 23, 2026, 9:30 a.m., Mammoth Courthouse, 100 Thompson Way, PO Box 1037, Mammoth Lakes, CA 93546.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

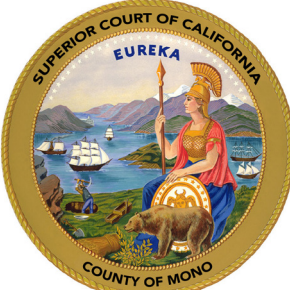

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Petitioner: Wendy Shrader, Pro Per, 2260 Brigadoon Avenue, Bishop, CA 93514, (760) 490-2829.
